GREENBROZ INC ADDS PRECISION BATCHER TO PRODUCT ARSENAL

For immediate release: GreenBroz Inc., the global leader in harvesting solutions for the legal cannabis industry, proudly introduces the Precision Batcher, powered by Green Vault Systems, to its already impressive line of harvesting solutions.

The GreenBroz Precision Batcher is the first machine of its kind to be specifically designed to work with cannabis flower. Unlike prior machines that have attempted to cross over from the food industry into the cannabis space, the GreenBroz Precision Batcher uses AirKush technology, not vibration, to foster an exponentially more gentle handling process, preserving trichomes and the integrity of the flower.

The Precision Batcher has a weighing resolution of 0.01 grams. This allows for ultra tight tolerances when batching. For example, 1 gram batches will generally fall between 1.01 to 1.04 grams. It is virtually impossible for humans to reach this level of accuracy with any kind of speed. A state-of-the-art touchscreen lets the user set target batch weights in addition to a number of other functions.

The most accurate batching system to ever hit the cannabis space, cultivations can process 800 batches per hour using whichever packaging receptacle they choose. This batching process also limits human contact, which decreases the chance that contaminants or human error will impact the harvest, ensuring that product stays as close to perfection as possible.

As a world leader in harvesting solutions for the legal cannabis space, we're always looking to expand our product offerings in an effort to make our clients' businesses more efficient, profitable, and successful. Our motivation comes from a deep-rooted desire to see all of our customers succeed and achieve their harvest goals. Green Vault Systems shares this ideology and we are excited to bring the Precision Batcher, powered by Green Vault Systems, to market. This innovative machine will provide cultivators an opportunity to further streamline their processing operation, thus creating more sustainable margins in an ever more competitive marketplace.
